This 1-day course presents WLEA's nationally recognized amendment based approach to use of force training for Detention Officers. Students learn about the application of the 4th, 8th and 14th Amendments towards the justification for the application of force in detention settings. Because of the unique requirements placed on Detention Officers regarding pre-trial detainees and convicted persons they have increased responsibility for wider knowledge of the use of force parameters. Includes the latest legal information available and is appropriate for any person assigned to detention responsibilities or as a refresher for any detention officer who has not received training in this topic during the last two years.

This course will be offered in conjunction with the Detention Officer Basic Course. Due to schedule changes, the dates may change. Please contact Sonja Erickson to confirm course date.
